CERTIFICATE OF PROCLAMATION

On behalf of the citizens of Michigan, I, Governor Jennifer M. Granholm, do hereby proclaim September 11, 2010,

Day of Service and Remembrance

Whereas, The state of Michigan comes together with the rest of the nation in recognizing one of the most significant days in our nation's history, one marked by great peril and courage; and,

Whereas, On September 11, 2001, terrorists attacked the United States, leading to the tragic deaths of thousands of innocent United States citizens and other individuals from more than 90 different countries and territories; and,

Whereas, In response to the attack, firefighters, police officers, emergency medical technicians, physicians, nurses, military personnel, and other first-responders rose to service in a heroic attempt to save lives; and,

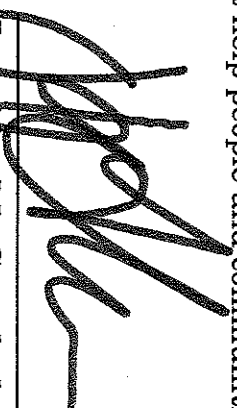

Whereas, In the days, weeks, and months following the attacks, thousands of people in the United States and other nations spontaneously volunteered to help support the rescue and recovery efforts, enduring both physical and emotional hardship; and,

Whereas, On this day, we celebrate the men and women across the state of Michigan and the nation who continue to place their dedication to service above all each day; and,

Whereas, In 2009, more than 2.3 million Michigan citizens contributed more than 308 million hours of service; and,

Whereas, Throughout the year, Michigan citizens heed the call to service in an effort to meet community needs and make service a way of life for all Americans;

Now, Therefore, be it Resolved, That I, Jennifer M. Granholm, governor of the state of Michigan, do hereby proclaim September 11, 2010, Day of Service and Remembrance in Michigan. May this day be devoted to remembrance by participating in service projects that help people and communities in need.
